

Bookstack

I have made bookstack happen, finally. You are reading from that success right now, this very second. I'm not sure how, exactly. I just did things until it suddenly worked. That's only half true. I was following this guide which pulls a docker image from this project and I noticed that it says "Unless a parameter is flaged as 'optional', it is mandatory and a value must be provided." In the guide I was following, there was a parameter missing: APP_KEY. The instructions read "You will need to generate this with docker run -it --rm --entrypoint /bin/bash lscr.io/linuxserver/bookstack:latest appkey". So I did that. And restarted. And restarted the container in a different way. And changed some things. And changed some more things. And restarted a bunch more times. And gave up, tried to install Haven instead, and failed at that. And finally changed the things just right in the right way, and BOOM! It works. Please don't ask for more details. Anyway, welcome, Bookstack, to the latest in the family of artemisia.earth. I am not sure if this is the best blogging platform for me, but it is what I could get working with the rest of my docker setup, so here we are.
